THE FORRESTAL STORY

The FORRESTAL story began long before the ship herself was laid down. In the closing months of World War II, Admiral Mark Mitscher made the first recorded suggestion for a carrier with the general characteristics of the FORRESTAL class.

On July 12, 1951, the Navy announced that the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company had been awarded a contract to build CVA 59. The keel was laid on July 14, 1952, and less than 30 months later FORRESTAL was launched.

Commissioning ceremonies were held October 1, 1955, at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard. On the same day, Captain Roy L. Johnson became the first commanding officer.

During her first eleven years FORRESTAL operated with the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean and off the U.S. east coast. Twice she was called on short notice to bolster U.S. forces in Europe; once during the Suez crisis in Nov. 1956, and then again in July 1958 during the Lebanon crisis.

In June 1967 FORRESTAL departed Norfolk for her first combat cruise in the Western Pacific, as a member of the U.S. Seventh Fleet.

A tragic fire on the fifth day of combat operations brought FORRESTAL's part in the war to an end. The conflagration killed 134 men and sent FORRESTAL back to Norfolk for repairs.

FORRESTAL deployed for the Mediterranean in July 1968. With air Wing 17 embarked, she recorded the longest CVA deployment in the Sixth Fleet - more than nine months.

Upon returning to Norfolk in April 1969, the ship's engineering spaces were overhauled for three months. FORRESTAL deployed for the Mediterranean in December 1969 for her eighth Sixth Fleet deployment which she completed on July 8, 1970.

FORRESTAL currently holds the coveted Battle Efficiency "E" award presented by the Commander, Naval Air Forces, U.S. Atlantic Fleet.

On July 2, 1971 FORRESTAL completed her nineth Mediterranean cruise.

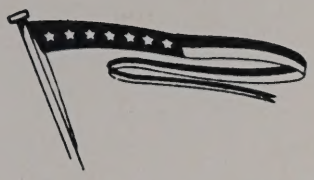
As the cruise drew to an end, so did the command of Captain Snead. On July 23, during the last port visit of the cruise - - Barcelona - - he was relieved by Captain Robert F. Schoultz in a change of command ceremony on FORRESTAL's sun-drenched flight deck. Captain Snead left to become Project Manager of the F-14/Phoenix Program and don the stars of a Rear Admiral.



CAPT. ROBERT F. SCHOULTZ

commanding officer

Captain Robert Francis Scholtz, a native of Omaha, Nebraska, began his Naval service in 1943 as a member of the ROTC at the University of Nebraska. He later transferred to the flight training program and was designated a Naval Aviator and commissioned Ensign on 1 September 1945.

Various tours of squadron duties included assignments in Attack Squadrons 74 and 25 on board numerous attack carriers. He attended the University of Missouri before training at the CIC School at Glenview, Illinois en route to duties aboard the USS MIDWAY (CVA-41).

Additional squadron duty and General Line School at Monterey, California preceded thirty months as a flight instructor of both basic and advanced courses. A year at the Naval Intelligence School prepared him for duties on CINCPACFLT Staff and the Fleet Intelligence Center, Pacific.

He returned to operational flying by serving two years as Executive Officer of Attack Squadron 93, and then assumed command of the squadron in 1962.

A year as a student at the U.S. Army War College, Carlisle, Pennsylvania, was followed by duties in the Officer Assignment Branch of the Bureau of Naval Personnel.

He served six months as Operations Officer and a year as Executive Officer aboard the USS FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT (CVA-42), including a deployment to the Gulf of Tonkin.

Captain Schoultz completed two and one half years as Strike Warfare and Assistant Chief of Plans on the Staff of the Commander, U.S. Second Fleet where prior to detachment, he acted as the Deputy of Staff for Operations and Plans.

He commanded the USS ARNEB (LKA-56) from December 1969 until January 1971 during two deployments with the Sixth Fleet. He was assigned to the Staff of COMNAVAIRLANT prior to assuming command of USS FORRESTAL in June 1971.

Captain Schoultz is married to the former Rosemary Parker of Falls City, Nebraska. They have two sons: Robert, 19, and Scott, 17. The family resides at 4721 Bradston Road, Virginia Beach, Virginia.
